Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Sunday 31 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Some rain and snow in west, wintry showers in north.

Today:
Many places dry and cold with some sunshine, although sleet and snow showers in the far north. Cloudier across Northern Ireland, then Wales and southwest England with outbreaks of rain and some snow, mainly over hills, moving east.

Tonight:
Snow showers in the far north, else clear spells and a sharp frost for northern areas. Cloudier in west and south with some rain, sleet and hill snow in places.

Monday:
Further outbreaks of rain in the west, with some snow for parts of Northern Ireland, and then central and southern Scotland. Drier in east, snow showers in far north.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Often unsettled with heavy rain, strong winds, and some snow for northern Britain. Best of any sunshine in extreme north and northwest. Cold in the north, mild in the south.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.